

Abstract

The present invention relates to oleophobic inorganic membranes and to a process for the preparation thereof, which can be used before fuel adsorbers of venting systems of fuel systems and which make possible separation of liquid fuel and the fuel vapor phase.